The German Wine Route Bad Dürkheim - Deidesheim

Giant Barrel Bad Dürkheim

The biggest barrel in the world with a volume of 1.7 million litres houses a wine tavern and restaurant. It has never been filled with wine. Built in 1934. In the Black Forest almost 200 pine trees were felled for the gigantic endeavour - each was about 40 metres high.

Bad Dürkheim

The salina dates back to the year 1847 and is used as an open-air inhalatorium; it operated during the summer season from May to September. As the brine trickles continuously over the huge walls it disintegrates into a fine mist of millions of salt-saturated droplets which create an "inland marine climate" and exert a soothing and curative effect on the afflicted respiratory organs.

Haßloch

The largest village in the state of Rhineland-Palatinate. Follow the footsteps of countless historical witnesses and discover the culture and tradition in the historic resort centre and at the outskirts of the village, or hike or cycle for miles on end through silent forests and open countryside on flat paths. Enjoy the mild climate in charming and relaxing surroundings on the picturesque Mill Hiking Trail, which leads you to mills from the 15th to 19th centuries, before you sit down and enjoy the warm hospitality in a cosy and friendly atmosphere.... #### Wachenheim

Directly on the German Wine Route south of Bad Dürkheim, in the middle of the Palatine Forest Nature Park (Naturpark Pfälzerwald) and surrounded by acres of sparkling vines lies the little town of Wachenheim, which is famous for its wine and "Sekt" (sparkling wine) production. You can enjoy the famed German "Gemütlichkeit" (cosiness) in the many restaurants or wine taverns where at the light of flickering candles the visitor may gaze at the countryside from within. We certainly do not exaggerate when we say that...

Deidesheim

Its unique combination of (wine) culture, love for its unspoilt countryside, Mediterranean verve, rich traditions and cosmopolitan flair give this "over paradise" a special charm that is all its own. Sights: Historical Town Hall, Town Park with plants from all over the world, museum of wine culture, German Film and Photo Technology
